Serotonin is an essential brain chemical because it increases will power, delays gratification, and increases attention to detail. It impacts every part of the mind. Despite the proliferation of prescription medications and supplements, your brain is more than capable of producing serotonin on its own. If for whatever reason your serotonin level is too low, you will find difficulty in finishing things, being active, and controlling your impulses.<sup>7</sup> Incredible Studies that Prove the Power of the Mind Krysti Turznik shares insight on mindset, spirituality, & self-growth.
