J. B. Priestley described Johnson Over Jordan as an adventure in theatre. Robert Johnson, a timid, meek man lives the most ordinary of lives - until he dies. Suddenly he is catapulted into the strangeness of his afterlife and begins a frightening, lurid and emotional journey. Past memories, secret desires and present regrets and longings mingle with the real, surreal and sublime, threatening to overwhelm him.

One of the educationist's major concerns today is to find effective ways of translating new goals for the curriculum into classroom practices. American and British contributions analyse curriculum change as it actually occurs, with people, institutions and constraints of time and money acknowledged and accepted as a necessary and rightful part of the whole process. Detailed accounts are given of curriculum change in a wide variety of settings: American and English school systems, a college of education, an art curriculum project, Scottish classrooms. Analytic perspectives are employed that help to clarify the underlying forces at work. The contributors probe the adequacy of current theorizing about curriculum development, and suggest new ways of thinking about the problems involved in bringing about change.

From Shame to Strength, Music Saved Me is a book for everyone concerned about girls, teenage pregnancies, and forced marriages. This is a true account of Magdalene, exploring her darkest times when she found herself as a teen mother forced into a marriage to cleanse herself of her so called 'sin' of premarital sex. Then transforming the shame from the pregnancy into something acceptable within her family, church, and society in general. Her courageous journey showing reality versus morality is one that makes her story extraordinary. This book is written in simple but powerful imagery demonstrating how a passion like music can transform shame into strength and how the power and belief in God can restore hope and faith. Surviving despair and becoming an embodiment of empowerment and strength to other girls worldwide. This is a 21st century powerful short motivational story, highly engaging and keeps dialoguing with the author.

What Every Woman Wants in a Man/What Every Man Wants in a Woman

Blurb

When your life is built around a father's wrath, how can you trust in the love of Father God? Mercy Roller knows her name is a lie: there has never been any mercy in her young life. Raised by a twisted and abusive father who called himself the Pastor, she was abandoned by the church community that should have stood together to protect her from his evil. Her mother, consumed by her own fear and hate, won't stand her ground to save Mercy either. The Pastor has robbed Mercy of innocence and love, a husband and her child. Not a single person seems capable of standing up to the Pastor's unrestrained evil. So Mercy takes matters into her own hands. Her heart was hardened to love long before she took on the role of judge, jury, and executioner of the Pastor. She just didn't realize the retribution she thought would save her, might turn her into the very thing she hated most. Sent away by her angry and grieving mother, Mercy's path is unclear until she meets a young preacher headed to counsel a pregnant couple. Sure that her calling is to protect the family, Mercy is drawn into a different life on the other side of the mountain where she slowly discovers true righteousness has nothing evil about it—and that there might be room for her own stained and shattered soul to find shelter. . . and even love. Mercy's Rain is a remarkable historical novel set in 19th century Appalachia that traces the thorny path from bitterness to forgiveness and reveals the victory and strength that comes from simple faith.
