Minerva Hepplewhite has learned the hard way how to take care of herself. When an intruder breaks into her home, she doesn’t swoon or simper. Instead she wallops the rogue over the head and ties him up—only to realize he is Chase Radnor, the man who nearly got her convicted of her late husband’s murder. Now he’s insisting that Minerva has inherited a fortune from his uncle, a wealthy Duke. Only one thing could surprise her more: her sudden attraction to this exasperating man . . . Chase can’t decide whether Minerva is a wronged woman or a femme fatale. Either way, he’s intrigued. Since the scandal surrounding her husband’s death, she has set up a discreet detective business to rival Chase’s own. She may be the perfect person to help him uncover the truth about his uncle’s demise. But as proximity gives way to mutual seduction, Chase realizes he craves a much deeper alliance . . . A Story of Rebellion, Courage, and Justice Hal Leonard Corporation

Cursed by God, hunted by demons, desired by Cain and Abel... All in a day's work. For Evangeline Hollis, a long ago fling with a bad boy from the wrong side of the tracks just became a disaster of biblical proportions. One night with a leather-clad man of mystery has led to a divine punishment: the Mark of Cain. Thrust into a world where sinners are drafted into service to kill demons, Eve's learning curve is short. A longtime agnostic, she begrudgingly maneuvers through a celestial bureaucracy where she is a valuable but ill-treated pawn. She's also become the latest point of contention in the oldest case of sibling rivalry in history... But she'll worry about all that later. Right now she's more concerned with learning to kill while staying alive. And saving the soul she'd never believed she had ... in S.J. Day's Eve of Darkness. "Gideon Cross came into my life like lightning in the darkness. He was beautiful and brilliant, jagged and white-hot. I was drawn to him as I'd never been to anyone in my life. I craved his touch like a drug, even knowing it would weaken me. I was flawed and damaged, and he opened those cracks in me so easily. Gideon knew. He had demons of his own. And we would become the mirrors that reflected each other's most private wounds and desires. The bonds of his love transformed me, even as I prayed that the torment of our pasts didn't tear us apart."--Back cover.

Making Data Work Linda Kage

A retail giant already struggling due to the Covid-19 pandemic was faced with a disastrous situation when—at the end of a critical investment in an artificial intelligence project that had been meant to save money--it suddenly discovered that its implementation was likely to leave it worse off. An entire critical service stream within an insurer's production system crashed. This critical failure revealed that the central insurance database relied upon by law enforcement agencies had not been updated, resulting in the detentions of fully insured motorists for allegedly not carrying required insurance. Investigations later revealed that avoidable information gaps across support teams and systems were at the root of the mayhem and had rendered team members powerless to avoid catastrophe. Making Data Work details these two scenarios as well as others illustrating the consequences that arise when organizations do not know how to make data work properly. Beyond the exploration of such ubiquitous challenges, this book draws on the author's experiences over the past two decades and exposes the approaches that have worked and those that have not. It recounts battles between stakeholder camps and between technology factions. Exploring the implications of silos, in terms of data and technology but also in terms of people and organisations, the book considers the perspectives of the hold-firm camps who seem extremely cautious and who espouse the benefits of maintaining the status quo. It also interrogates the viewpoints of the demolish-all camps who seem razor-focused on outcomes and embrace the ideology of a 'results at all cost' mindset underpinned by radical increases in the speed of change. It is not only packed with case studies on what approaches do not work but also provides actionable solutions that have delivered desirable outcomes. This book is a journey to determine what to do to make data work for ourselves and for our organisations. It is a journey to discover how to bring it all together so organisations can enable digital transformation, empower people, and advance organisational success. It is the journey to a world where data and technology finally live up to the hype and deliver better human outcomes, where artificial intelligence can move us from reacting to situations to predicting future occurrences and enabling desirable possibilities.
