Teaching Technology LAPA Uitgewers

Teaching Technology: Intermediate to Senior Phase responds to the need for a comprehensive guide to a subject area that teachers often experience as complex. It provides an entry point to fluent and confident Technology teaching through engaging with the content and methodology of the CAPS Technology Education curriculum in South African schools. Its approach and features help student and in-service teachers to produce technologically literate learners. Practically and resourcefully, Teaching Technology presents the history and theoretical underpinnings of the subject, mapping the integration of Science and Technology teaching. By presenting African perspectives of technology and its uses, and acknowledging the richness of indigenous knowledge, the book guides students and in-service teachers in using learners' cultural knowledge as a springboard for greater conceptual understanding. It also offers suggestions for productive Technology teaching in schools across the spectrum of resource availability by focusing on resource access and use, classroom management, lesson planning, inclusivity, methodology and assessment. Teaching Technology is suitable for students taking Intermediate and Senior Phase Technology teaching methodology courses in the BEd, PGCE and ACE/ADE programmes, as well as in-service teachers of Technology who seek to develop professionally.

In Haiku for Africa, poet Marie Heese takes us on a journey - following the footprints of women before us, women among us, women just like us - to experience the continent of Africa afresh. Enjoy glimpses of shifting landscapes, the shadow of a smile, and fleeting moments captured in a handful of words. An ideal moment of repose is captured with insight and poise. Mother Africa shares her wisdom within this collection of more than 50 haiku, through the voices of three formidable women - poet Marie Heese, illustrator Edith Bukani, and voice artist Natalia Molebatsi. "[T]he effect of Heese's collection is like listening to a robin with a repertoire, tones ranging through wit and self-irony and sympathy to the crystal of just being somewhere almost beyond words. It's a good, warm, sophisticated voice, each little vision worth its moment of reflection...." - Norman Morrissey in Carapace 22

The Book of Squares by Fibonacci is a gem in the mathematical literature and one of the most important mathematical treatises written in the Middle Ages. It is a collection of theorems on indeterminate analysis and equations of second degree which yield, among other results, a solution to a problem proposed by Master John of Palermo to Leonardo at the Court of Frederick II. The book was dedicated and presented to the Emperor at Pisa in 1225. Dating back to the 13th century the book exhibits the early and continued fascination of men with our number system and the relationship among numbers with special properties such as prime numbers, squares, and odd numbers. The faithful translation into modern English and the commentary by the translator make this book accessible to professional mathematicians and amateurs who have always been intrigued by the lure of our number system.

Thomas is moving to a new house, and he hates the idea with a passion. Even though his stepmother, Louisa, is quite cool, having a new half-brother or -sister is something Thomas is definitely not looking forward to. To make matters worse, the house they are going to live in is an ancient Victorian place.
