Reforming Juvenile Justice in America DIANE Publishing
In recent years far more attention has been paid to victims of crime both in terms of awareness of the effect of crime upon their lives, and in changes that have been made to the criminal justice system to improve their rights and treatment. This process seems set to continue, with legislative plans announced to rebalance the criminal justice system in favour of the victim. This latest book in the Cambridge Criminal Justice Series brings together leading authorities in the field to review the role of the victim in the criminal justice system in the context of these developments.

Excerpt from Prosecution of Federal Gun Crimes: Hearing Before the Subcommittee on Crime and Criminal Justice of the Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, One Hundred Third Congress, Second Session Mr. Schumer. Without objection, Mr. Schiff is recognized for as much time as he wishes. Mr. Schiff. First of all, I want to thank you for that compliment to me, and I would like to respectfully return the compliment. In all the time that I have served with you on this subcommittee, you have been very open to suggestions that I have made and ideas and proposals, including at various hearings allowing extra time for questioning when that was appropriate. And so I think I have been treated very fairly. I have to say that for the last 2 months, I think the delays in having this hearing were entirely unavoidable and I think just groups of circumstances arose from one source or other that pre vented this hearing from occurring before the August recess. And certainly, I think, that that was no fault at all. I do, however, have to say that I am very disappointed that it took from my request in November 1993, 8 months to July 1994, to secure your agreement to hold this hearing. I realize you said that we would hold the hearing after the crime bill was completed, but

I think that there was no reason to wait until after the crime bill was completed. No other issue waited until the crime bill was completed. We had hearings on every other aspect of criminal law and criminal justice virtually at the drop of a hat. I think there is no reason why this waited 8 months.
