The COVID-19 pandemic is the worst crisis and historical record for the global tourism sector since the 1950s. Destinations that rely heavily on the tourism sector will face this pandemic's extraordinary impact, such as Bali, which experienced a significant depreciation of economic growth. However, the COVID-19 pandemic is also the right opportunity and momentum to redesign tourism development more sustainable to overcome the overtourism issue in Bali. Tourism recovery efforts must be carried out immediately by prioritizing product diversification and increasing destinations' value and quality according to tourism development trends, such as digital nomadism. Digital nomadism as a lifestyle allows individuals to work regardless of location and take advantage of that freedom to travel worldwide. The practice of digital nomadism has developed rapidly pre-pandemic in the Ubud Tourism Area, Bali, and it will increase further due to the digital transformation of human life during the COVID-19 pandemic. The Ubud Tourism Area recovery as a digital nomadism destination must be a priority consideration by the government, tourism entrepreneurs and local communities in entering the post-normal tourism period.

Though one of the smallest islands of the Indonesian archipelago, Bali has miles of world-famous beaches, perfect for sunbathers and surfers alike. But Bali also has extraordinary inland attractions, including picturesque rice terraces, the towering Kintamani volcano, the holy forest with its wild monkeys and the romantically sited water temple of Ulun Danu. The island has a rich cultural heritage with over 20,000 temples and numerous colourful festivals and ceremonies. A drive through the small country roads will take you through many artisan villages specialising in stone and wood carving; jewellery making and ikat weaving. Bali is also an ideal destination for families with its many child-friendly attractions, such as rafting, cycling, elephant rides and the Bali Bird Park.

Integrated city tourism development model urgent should be done for short term and long term. Developing an urban area is an attempt to raise revenue through tax of hotels, restaurants, and increase economic activities in urban areas. Integrated city tourism will realize the satisfaction of all parties. Some cities in Indonesia deserve to be developed as a tourist city when viewed from some of the components as a tourist attraction. These components are like: the town hall, the street that contains myth and meaningful, historical monuments, culinary, colleges or universities, shopping malls, traditional markets, parks, museums, exhibitions, and other attractions. To be able to package it as a tourist product, the necessary integration of all aspects that comprise aspects of the appeal of the city, the transportation aspect, the aspect of the main aspects and support facilities, and institutions such as the attributes of human resources, systems, and other relevant institutions. In this study, Denpasar city as a case study for the city of Denpasar as a business center for Balinese, and the center of tourist activity both domestic and foreign. To make the city of Denpasar as an attractive tourist town, in need of restructuring. The arrangement is an urgent need e.g. Community business center arrangement, the arrangement of the hotel, and the management of tourist areas.
